

GUIDELINES FOR POTENTIAL CONTRIBUTORS

The journal Discusiones Filosóficas accepts original contributions such as research papers, reviews, translations and articles on its topics of interest (philosophy on all fields and philosophy of literature). These contributions are published in Spanish, English or Portuguese, unless the author explicitly requests a Spanish Translation. The journal also invites the readers to send short texts in response to previously published articles, as well as reviews of specialized books published recently. The collaborations should be sent to the Editorial Board.

The texts should follow the MLA norms (see an example in the web page of the journal), and be accompanied by an abstract no longer than 150 words, preferably including its Spanish translation, and at least four key words. A printed (Word program) and a CD copy of the proposals should be sent to the Editorial Board. Proposals exceeding 7000 words (including the abstract) will not be considered. All of the articles will be subjected to anonymous evaluation by expert readers, in the order of arrival. Electronic versions can also be mailed to the following e-mail address: discufilo@ucaldas.edu.co. In each article the authors must include their institutional affiliation as well as some basic professional and investigative information. Prospective authors should certify that they have not sent their proposal for publication to any other journal and that they will refrain from submitting it for consideration of another journal for as long as our evaluation process takes.

The bibliographical references should appear integrated in the text, in parenthesis, in the following way: (author's last name page number). The complete references should appear at the end of the text.

For the issue corresponding to the semester January-June, the journal receives potential articles until March the 31st. For the issue corresponding to the semester July-December, the journal receives potential articles until September the 30th. The contributions received after these dates will be considered for publication in the following semester. All of the articles are subjected to a double blind evaluation. The authors will be notified of the referees' decision within the two months following the reception of the proposals. Only articles that satisfactorily pass the evaluation process will be published.
